Mercedes Pérez Berbain is an educational consultant and teacher educator. She is a faculty member at Pilgrims Teacher Training (UK) and ESSARP (Argentina), and a reviewer for several international journals. She holds an M.A. in Education with Distinction from Oxford Brookes University, UK. She has written materials for Pearson and OUP, and co-edited for Palgrave Macmillan. Her research interests include leadership in education, inclusion, and young learners.

Objectives:

- Share the daily challenges of leading as an educator in the classroom and as a head.
- Think of strategies to become the best leaders we can be.

Contents: This is an interactive session in which participants will share their challenges and will come up with ideas to overcome these challenges themselves. The discussion will be triggered by the following contents:
Leading today with your whole self, a sense of purpose, an aligned structure, and a support system.
